Feng Shui Design Consultation

Thank you for your interest in working with me.
A feng shui design consultation is a deeply personal process — one that looks not only at your home, but at how your environment supports you emotionally, physically, and energetically in everyday life.

My work combines over 30 years of experience in interior design, feng shui, healthy homes, and complementary therapies. Every consultation is tailored individually, with the intention of guiding you to create a home that feels balanced, nurturing, practical, and fully aligned with who you are.

How We Work Together

1. Discovery Call

Our process begins with a complimentary discovery call. This gives us an opportunity to discuss your space, what is currently happening in your life, and what you hope to gain from our consultation.

Whether you are renovating, moving home, feeling "stuck" in your environment, or simply looking to create a greater sense of harmony and support within your space, this conversation helps me understand how best to guide you.

2. Preparing for Your Consultation

Before we meet, I will ask you to send:

- A floor plan of the property (a simple A4 sketch is perfectly fine, once it is proportionate)
- Your full address and Eircode
- Your date, place, and time of birth
- Details for other occupants if relevant
- A completed questionnaire which I will send to you following our initial discovery call.
- A brief history of the property and any particular concerns or goals you may have

This preliminary work allows me to begin understanding both the energetic character of the home and your personal energetic signature as they relate to one another, as I prepare for our consultation itself.

3. Your Personalised Feng Shui Consultation

Each consultation is entirely bespoke and usually lasts approximately 2–3 hours, depending on the property and your requirements.

During our time together, we explore how your environment can better support you as you work, rest, and live day to day. We look at the relationship between:

- The orientation and energetic quality of the building
- The surrounding environment and landscape
- Your personal energy profile and best directions
- Furniture placement and spatial flow
- Colour, materials, artwork, lighting, and design choices
- Areas of imbalance, stagnation, or energetic depletion within the home

My approach is always grounded in both practicality and aesthetics. The intention is never to create a home that simply "follows rules," but rather one that feels deeply supportive, authentic, and joyful to live in.

Integrating Personal Energy & Space

As part of our consultation we can include calculating your personal energetic signature using systems including 9 star ki and directional analysis.

This offers valuable insight into:

- How your home can better support your wellbeing and energy
- Your personal most supportive orientation of furnishings for sleep, work, and relaxation
- Areas of life that may need strengthening or balancing
- The energetic themes and opportunities emerging for you at this stage of life

This information is then thoughtfully integrated into the design and layout recommendations for your home.

Healthy Homes & Energy Balancing

Where appropriate, I may also assess the home for environmental stressors such as:

- Geopathic stress
- EMF exposure
- Chemical pollutants within the home

If needed, recommendations can be made to help create a healthier and more harmonious living environment. In certain cases, balancing work may also be carried out to help harmonise disruptive earth energies beneath the property.

Many clients seek this support when experiencing disturbed sleep, low energy, or a sense that the home simply does not feel settled or restorative.

Space Clearing

Space clearing may also form part of your consultation- this is optional.

Over time, homes can retain the emotional imprint of previous experiences and occupants. Space clearing is a gentle process that refreshes and lifts the atmosphere within a property, helping to create clarity, renewal, and a greater sense of ease within the space.

It can be especially beneficial after moving home, during periods of transition, or when a space feels heavy or stagnant.

After Your Consultation

Following our session, you will receive a detailed written report outlining all recommendations discussed during the consultation.

The report is designed to be practical, clear, and easy to follow, allowing you to implement changes gradually and at your own pace.

I also remain available for follow-up questions in the weeks afterwards, as clients often find that new insights emerge once they begin working with the recommendations in their home.

For clients undertaking renovations or building work, additional design consultations can also be arranged to assist with interior schemes, layouts, finishes, and material selections in alignment with your personalised feng shui recommendations.

Consultation Fees

Onsite Consultation (Dublin Area)

€600

This includes:

- Preliminary analysis and preparation
- A 2–3 hour onsite consultation
- A comprehensive written report afterwards outlining all recommendations made during our consultation.

For properties outside Dublin, additional travel costs may apply depending on location and travel time.

Online Consultation

€540

Online consultations follow much the same structure as onsite sessions and are ideal for clients living further afield or where an in-person visit is not practical.

A full written report is also included.

Optional:

Personal energy analysis using Feng Shui astrology (9 Star Ki):

This is your personal energy signature which indicates the potential energy you were born with. We assess where your energy is this year (within a 9 year cycle) and how best to support you in general and with the application of specific feng shui enhancements to support you individually.

Space Clearing:

Space clearing helps refresh and rebalance the energy within a home or workplace. It can be especially beneficial when moving into a new property, after major life changes, or whenever a space feels heavy or stagnant. Space clearing and energy balancing where appropriate includes energetic analysis of the space, geopathic stress balancing where appropriate, space clearing with sound, personalised incense blend and personalised space clearing mist made for you with pure essential oils.

Also included is healthy homes & energy balancing. Where needed, I can assess for:

- Geopathic stress
- EMF exposure
- Chemical stressors within the home

Recommendations may also include practical energy-balancing techniques to help improve wellbeing, rest, and overall harmony within the space. We are not separate from our environments, both our inner and outer worlds need to be in balance to achieve a sense of harmony and fulfilment.
